Astronomer to present lecture tonight

A leading astronomer and physicist will present a public lecture on "Cosmic Evolution: The Origins of Matter and Life" at 8 p.m. Monday at the University Planetarium.

Eric Chaisson, director of the Wright Center for Innovative Science Education at Tufts University, will visit the University Monday and Tuesday as part of the Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program.

Chaisson, a research professor of physics and education at Tufts, is also an associate of the Harvard College Observatory and co-director of the MIT Space Grant Consortium. While at the University Chaisson will also present a public discussion of "The Role of Visualization in Science Education" at 11 a.m. Tuesday in 106 Overman Hall and a physics-astronomy department colloquium on "Complexity in Nature" intended for scientists at 4 p.m. in 106 Overman Hall.

Quote of the day

"Totals from the recycling center are down from last year, so we wanted to think of what to do to bring people's attention to how easy it is."

-Kevin Kellner, Environmental Action Group officer about Recycling Awareness Week.

Day-care facility will use lottery to select children

Daria Warnock
The BG News

Beginning May 13, the University day-care center will be ready to open its doors to staff and students for the very first time.

The center has spaces available for 72 children, broken down into the categories of infants, toddlers and preschoolers. Ten spaces will be available for infants aged six weeks to 18 months; 14 spaces for toddlers aged 18-24 months; 14 spaces for toddlers aged 24-36 months; and 34 spaces for preschooler aged three to five years.

The preschool group will be broken up into two classrooms with 17 children each. The number of allotted spaces are based on federally mandated daycare ratios.

Donna Wittwer, benefits manager, said the next step in the process is to begin the lottery process to choose which children will fill the limited number of seats.

"The message I'm concerned about is getting the information out to the students and staff," Wittwer said. "We hope to fill them by May."

The lottery process is started by completing an application to document the child's age and needs. The applications will then be separated and chosen at random. Those not picked through the early application process will be placed on a waiting list to be notified if any spaces open up in the future.

"I think the demand is out there," Wittwer said. "There will be more people coming."

The cost of the facility is comparable with area services, according to Eric Dubow, a member of the Child Care Task Force.

"It is competitive," Dubow said. "It is about the same with other child care facilities in the area."

Dubow said the committee did background research on child-care facilities in the Wood County area. They found that the prices offered by the University facility, called the Jordan Family Development Center, were in the same range as others in the region.

"This has been a long term issue at this University," Dubow said. "This is the first phase."

The full day weekly rates for infants is $110; toddlers, $102; Preschool, $92. Half day rates are not available for infants. Half day toddler rates are $55; preschool rates are $50. There is an annual registration fee of $25 per child.

Applications must be completed and returned by April 5. Applicants will be notified of their status during the week of April 8.

"If you have a child and are interested, fill out the application," Wittwer said.

The cost for families will be based on the ages and number of children enrolled as well as the times needed for care. Specific information will be provided in a packet given to all who apply.

The center will be operated by WSOS Community Action Inc., a private, non-profit corporation which also provides a Head Start program for pre-kindergarten children in the area. The Head Start students are expected to begin their classes at the center some time this month.

For more information contact Wittwer at 372-2113.

EAG encourages awareness

Recycling week activities promote interest, attention

Jennifer Schab
The BG News

Recycling Awareness Week is not an activity that a million people show up for, but at least it draws attention to recycling and people think about it, said the recycling program coordinator.

"It was a great idea," Craig Wittig said, recycling program coordinator. "It went pretty well."

"Awareness is important because people want to recycle but don't think about it all the time," Wittig said. "People just need to walk the extra feet to recycle, and they also need a constant reminder that recycling is easy."

Kevin Kellner, Environmental Action Group officer, said the purpose of the Recycling Awareness Week was to get people more interested.

"Totals from the recycling center are down from last year, so we wanted to think of what to do to bring people's attention to how easy it is," Kellner said. "The week made people aware that it just takes a little more effort to recycle than to throw it away."

Kellner said the week did gain some attention, but it is hard to Recycling Awareness Week was sponsored by the Environmental Action Group and took place March 4 through 9. During the week there was a BGSU Recycling display, there were flyers passed out, volunteers processed aluminum cans and sorted through trash and picked out recyclables.

Environmental Action Group members collected 273 pounds of trash during the week. After sorting through the garbage they discovered 57 percent of it was recyclable.

Craig Wittig spoke to students about the program and there was also a solid waste workshop.

High school hosts Wood County GOP Convention

Brandon Wray
The BG News

The Wood County Republican Convention took place Saturday at Bowling Green High School.

Five hundred delegates from around the county attended and voted on various party issues and candidates. A crowd of 1500 spectators and citizens showed up to give their support.

Party speakers spoke of their goals for Wood County and the state, and of Bob Dole's presidential campaign.

Current committee chairman Mike Marsh and chairman-elect John Miller served as masters of ceremony for the event.

Reverend James Holber started off the convention with a prayer for the party.

"We pray that God will guide our Republican ship safely into shore," Holber said.

Randy Gardner, Ohio House Majority Leader, spoke about the need for the support of Wood County citizens.

"We can accomplish nothing in Columbus without the support of people back in Wood County," Gardner said. "Believe me when I say that your support has made a difference."

Gardner also talked about the economy and welfare reform.

"We have cut taxes on Ohio's citizens by 220 million," Gardner said. "Government has the responsibility to help those who can't help themselves, but government does not have the responsibility to help those who have the opportunity to help themselves but choose not to."

Education reform was also addressed by Gardner.

"Education spending has received a higher percentage of the state budget since we have been in power," Gardner said. "Schools need to recognize that there is a students' bill of rights which includes the right not to have another student interfere with their education."

Randy Whitman, Republican challenger to Democratic incumbent congresswoman Marcy Kaptur, spoke on his current bid to unseat Kaptur who has served Northwest Ohio since the early eighties.

"Marcy Kaptur has voted for every tax increase that has come down the line and she has stood in the way of the Contract with America," Whitman said.

Whitman added that some of the legislation he plans to work on includes Parental Home Care Act and the Dependent Day Care Act.

Gore, Weckesser win USG top spots

Jay Young
The BG News

Tara Gore was announced as the Undergraduate Student Government President for the 1996-97 school year Friday morning.

The Gore-James Weckesser ticket received 693 votes, defeating Nathan Green and Jennifer Georges, who received 664 votes.

Gore, junior political science major, said she is very excited about the upcoming school year.

"I'm really excited," Gore said. "I knew it was close. It just came down to [Thursday], talking to people and getting them out to vote."

Gore campaigned heavily on the issue of safety. She said one of her first priorities before the end of this semester will be to address concerns dealing with the University foot patrol.

"I really want to start working with the foot patrol," Gore said.

Gore said she will spend the summer at the University with her running mate to begin organizing for the new school year.

"Starting right now we just want to get things organized," Gore said.

Testing system needs testing

Get fit for sex and speeding

With the recent passing of mid-terms, students have most likely encountered tests in many classes. Formats include true-false, essay, or everyone's favorite computer sheet melee, multiple guess.

Some recent studies done on testing and test performance have caught the attention of many in the education world. It has been found that some students' performances have much to do with the kind of test they are given.

Many students find that they retain little, if any, long-term memory of information presented to them in classes where the tests were based solely on several multiple-choice exams in which they were required only to use short-term, rote memorization of facts and definitions from text books and class lectures.

Another concern is the fairness in which the test questions are presented. Ann Marie Ryan, director of Institute for Psychological Research and Application, said "Fairness isn't something that is totally objective. You need to make sure everybody is treated the same way."

Ryan also said she believes that the best testing method is the one which will help predict what the student will find outside of school.

Leigh Chiarelott, professor and chairman for Education Curriculum and Instruction, said, "There is an inherent test bias in any kind of test. What we're moving to now is authentic assessment." He explained that this type of assessment is not as contrived as many because it allows students to show what they have learned, rather than what they have memorized.

The News believes that the best type of testing is the one where students need to apply knowledge. Tests which are a true demonstration of what a student actually knows, instead of just 50 or so units of coughed-up information, can be more useful to students by helping them to retain long-term knowledge and not forget everything they learned as soon as the semester is over.

After all, we all know that the real world is not a computer-graded sheet of multiple choice.

Ahhhh, spring! Once again, it's time to clean the garage! Time to get out the ol' bathing suit! Time to wash the car! Time to fall in love! Time to get in shape, you lazy GOOD-FOR-NOTHING PORK RIND-EATING DISGUSTING CARTOON-WATCHING COUCH POTATO!

Uhhhh, sorry about that! Didn't mean to go off on you like that, it's just that, well, I've been bitten by the fitness bug. Y'know, the same one that bites everybody right about this time of year, when the sun comes out, you can wear shorts, and you don't worry about stumbling home from the bars in arctic conditions. People everywhere pledge to get in shape, to lose those extra pounds, to lift weights six days a week and run 10 miles a day...and maybe two or three individuals will actually stick to their goals, but most people will give up after five weeks, or after they find out you can be totally out of shape and STILL get laid, whichever comes first.

"Oh," a lot of you are saying, "so you're saying people only get in shape for sex?" I'm sure there are some people that actually care about being physically fit, and they will run or swim or lift or whatever -- regardless of how much sex they are having -- for personal goals or something, and eventually make it to the Olympics, but yeah, it seems like most people like to get in shape for a little sex appeal.

Don't misunderstand me -- I know plenty of people that aren't gettin' any, and they still like to work out, but let's face it: If we didn't care what others think we look like ... well, go to any 8:30am class on Friday and you'll see what I mean.

There are exceptions, of course. Body builders, for instance, do not lift station wagons and ingest large amounts of hazardous waste-like chemicals in order to get sex. They lift station wagons and use these substances to SCARE PEOPLE. Just LOOK at them. Whenever you see men or women who are body builders on television, flexing and grunting and forcing smiles and sweating, you do not think, "My, those abnormally huge muscles certainly do add to their sex appeal!" No, you think, "Good Lord! Those people have been constipated since Thanksgiving! They really ought to eat more bran!"

Besides, I really don't think these individuals are CAPABLE of having sex. Oh, I'm sure they were all born with the proper sexual organs, but their bodies destroyed them in order to make more room for muscles. Who knows? Maybe all those chemicals flowing through their bodies have altered them so they can reproduce asexually. Maybe they have little embryos growing in their arms and legs -- Lord knows they're big enough -- and one day, while they are flexing and grunting and groaning, their skin will split open and small creatures will squirt out, just like in the movie "Alien."

But asexual reproduction in body builders is not what I want to talk about. Self-abuse in the name of "staying fit" is. You can walk -- or run, if you're one of THEM -- over to the Student Recreation Center on any given day and witness hundreds of students trying to physically improve themselves. Most students seem to be in great pain while at the Student Rec Center. Let's take the runners, for example. If you go up to the track above the basketball courts (NOTE: I do not consider basketball "exercise" because you're having too much fun doing it. The fact that it is an excellent workout is just a really neat bonus. The same goes for racketball, football, sex, rugby, dancing, really intense air hockey, pumping the keg, etc.) you will never see happy people. HAPPY people are at BW-3. Drinking BEER. The people on the track are NOT drinking beer. They are not drinking ANYTHING. They are actually LOSING fluids. Fluids containing the HAPPY feelings. Granted this is only one of the downsides. The upside is that these people can have sex for HOURS. THAT is why so many enter the Boston Marathon: to solve MARITAL problems.

Sure, doctors will say that marathons and triathlons help strengthen the heart, help build a superior cardio-respiratory system, will extend your life, and contributes to an overall better life, but doctors ALSO used to say that the best way to cure a bad wound was to throw a couple of virgins into an active volcano, so you gotta take what they say with a grain of salt -- which, contrary to popular belief, isn't that bad for you (provided you don't EAT any of it).

"Okay, we see your point, and from now on we'll only roller blade or drink beer, but we still don't see how sex fits into the equation." Alright, here's an example: a friend of mine was on her way home from a workout when she got pulled over for speeding -- 15 miles per hour over the limit! This young MALE cop came up to her car, decided for SOME reason to let her off, end of story. I, on the other hand, was not coming home from a workout when I got pulled over for speeding -- 10 miles per hour over. This same cop did NOT let me off with a warning, end of story #2. And how does sex fit in? Well, actually it doesn't, 'cuz my friend -- going five miles per hour FASTER than me -- got nothing; I got screwed.

Congrats to Tara Gore. And to anybody who sees me at the SRC, I'm there for personal goals ... really. dgaffne@bgnet.bgsu.edu.

SCIENTISTS ANNOUNCE THE DISCOVERY OF ANOTHER FORM OF MATTER/ANTI-MATTER...

THE NEWTRINO

...WHICH, WHEN COMBINED, PRODUCES ABSOLUTELY NO ENERGY.

Americans' health getting worse

Personal responsibility could not be more important than it is today in public health. Despite the advances in research, health information and preventative medicine in the past few decades, Americans don't seem to be using all that is available to them to improve their health. Trend data suggests that, in many ways, Americans' health may actually be getting worse instead of better.

People can prevent serious illnesses and avoid premature death, but it often takes serious, long-term behavior changes. Many Americans are consuming too much fat and sodium; parents are not knowledgeable about childhood immunizations; many pregnant women are not seeking the early and continuous prenatal care; many physicians are over-prescribing antibiotics, ultimately causing mutations in present bacteria and proliferation of anti-biotic resistant strains of bacteria.

In the end, the problems are not isolated personal health problems -- they are threats to the public's health and common wealth. Solution: Americans can and should do better at making use of our collective knowledge and tools through personal responsibility.

Clubhouse possible without student money

Think of all the beautiful sports palaces on this campus. They are among the best -- if not the best -- and they're all exquisite.

First, the Perry Football Stadium. It's not the newest or the biggest or the most luxurious, but still, it ranks right up there as among the best, especially the playing field itself.

Then, there's Anderson Arena. It's not the biggest, nor the newest, but comfortable. It's great for the small crowds (except when we play Toledo, of course).

Next, the Student Recreational Center. The epitome of all that's good (paid for by the students, of course).

This is not to forget the Ice Arena. With the addition of the new seats and the money from ice-time, it became self supporting, not a liability.

Last, but not least, there's the clubhouse (so-called) on the very fine Creason Golf Course. A turn of the century farmhouse that doesn't even resemble a clubhouse. It stands on a course where about 50,000 rounds of golf are played annually.

A place that, if built properly in the right location, offered golf supplies and clothes, served food and drink, and provided a place where golfers could sit and lie about the great round of golf they just played, could increase revenues by about one-third or more.

There's going to be a new course and clubhouse built in BG in about a year or so. All the revenue that could go to Forrest Creason will move to the new course.

But it's not too late if action is taken now. Think about it...a new clubhouse that could pay for itself, without student money.

President thanks everyone for support

I am writing this letter on behalf of all the brothers of Theta Chi Fraternity.

This past week has been very hard on our chapter. Darrell Harris was a wonderful person and will be in our memory forever.

Many people have helped make this tragedy easier to bear.

We would like to thank the following: Delta Zeta, Kappa Alpha, IFC Presidents, Nick Hennessy, Kelly Hepke, Wayne Colvin, the Counseling Center, University Police, all of our professors and all of our friends.

I would also like to thank our chapter for pulling together and overcoming this obstacle.

Ohio traditionally significant in general elections

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- President Clinton left Tuesday's primary to the Republicans. But because of Ohio's importance in general elections, he is expected to have a higher profile, starting this weekend.

He makes his eleventh trip to Ohio as president when he speaks Saturday at a fund-raiser for the state Democratic Party and campaigns in Cincinnati.

"Obviously, Ohio is a critical state, and the president's number of visits here underscores that importance," said David J. Leland, the state Democratic Party chairman.

The leading state for Clinton's attention has been the biggest electoral prize, California. He has been there 23 times. Clinton has visited Texas five times, Michigan six times and Illinois seven.

Vice President Al Gore has made eight visits to each of the major Midwestern states. He campaigned in Columbus and Cincinnati three weeks ago.

A key to determining a state's importance is the way a campaign allocates its resources, said Ann Lewis, deputy campaign manager for Clinton/Gore '96.

"Obviously, as he chooses where he will go, there always will be many, many more requests than we have days, and Ohio is very high on our list," Lewis said.

In several recent statewide polls, Clinton has had comfortable leads over likely Republican candidate Bob Dole. In 1992, Clinton narrowly won Ohio's 21 electoral votes.

Ohio has been in the winning candidate's side in all but two elections this century; no Republican has won the White House without carrying the state.

Now that Dole has virtually locked up the Republican nomination, he will gear up his Ohio campaign schedule, said Robert T. Bennett, the Ohio Republican chairman.

"I expect that Dole will be in to help us with some of our victory fund-raisers later on, but not until after the primary process," Bennett said. "I think Bob Dole is well aware that he's going to have to spend a lot of time in Ohio."

Dole also has the advantage of the endorsements of Gov. George Voinovich and every major Republican state officeholder.

State may raise gas tax for road repairs

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- State lawmakers say they might be forced to raise Ohio's gasoline tax to fix crumbling roads and relieve congested highways.

"No question, the gas tax will probably be the way we have to tackle the highway funding problem in the long run," said Sen. Roy Ray, R-Akron. "It's obvious there is not enough money to do what needs to be done in this state."

The Ohio Department of Transportation said that it needs an extra $100 million for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and more money later. Without it, ODOT would cut 20 of the 76 projects it planned for the next six years.

Last fall, Gov. George Voinovich and the Legislature decided against raising the gasoline tax.

Instead, voters approved a Republican-backed $1.2 billion "credit card" to fix the highways. The option involves selling state-guaranteed bonds and paying them back over a period of time.

Now Voinovich and top legislators say the credit line will not provide enough money. The state needs more cash to repair bridges, build new highways and make debt payments. About 28 cents of every dollar the state borrows pays interest on the loan, ODOT said.

As a result, lawmakers may have to raise the gasoline tax to pay for highways.

Budget Director R. Gregory Browning talked about his misgivings last year when he testified in favor of raising the tax.

"The point I made is an obvious one," Browning said. "If you want to build something, is it cheaper to build with cash or with borrowed funds? The answer, of course, is if you have the money and you don't have to borrow it, that's the cheapest way to go."

Voinovich and other Republican leaders hope to persuade Congress to return some of the federal gasoline tax to Ohio. Congressional leaders said that is unlikely.

Off to the races

Jake Soins, 11, yells as he speeds down a hill in a parking lot in Middleton, Ohio, Saturday, while racing two friends. According to the boys, they were cleaning out one of their garages when they found three old three wheelers and decided to race.

ACLU asks for block of school voucher program

John Chalfant
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- A judge has been asked to block without a trial a pilot project in which some Cleveland parents could send their children to private schools at taxpayer expense.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio asked Franklin County Common Pleas Judge David Johnson on Friday to declare the $5.2 million school voucher program unconstitutional.

Gov. George Voinovich and the Legislature authorized the test for the 1996-97 school year.

ACLU lawyers were representing three opponents of the program who filed a lawsuit against it Jan. 31.

"The plaintiffs contend that there are no disputed facts in this lawsuit, and that it raises only legal issues," the ACLU said in a news release.

"If the court agrees, a trial will not be necessary and the lawsuit can be resolved more expeditiously," it said.

"In all likelihood I imagine that's where this issue will be resolved," said Joan Englund, legal director for the ACLU of Ohio.

No ruling from Johnson was expected for at least a month.

Fiber optics proposed to 15 northeast Ohio cities

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Fifteen north-east Ohio cities are considering building their own fiber optic network that would rent space to telephone, cable television and Internet providers, The Plain Dealer reported Sunday.

It could cost as much as $200 million, but the consortium of cities believes it is a way to make money and reduce prices.

Other cities in the country have similar plans, but no municipally owned systems have been built, the newspaper said.

A fiber optic line is a thin strand of glass that allows voice, picture and data to be transmitted at the speed of light. The system proposed for the 15 cities would have 96 strands of fiber optic line, providing nearly unlimited capacity.

The copper wires now used to bring in telephone and cable have a limited capacity, are prone to interference from stray signals and transmit information slower.

"This will allow cities to control their own telecommunications future," said Bedford City Manager Vilas Gamble, a leader of the proposal.

The network would guarantee competition because smaller companies that can't afford to build their own networks would be able to enter the market, he said.

Colorado-based International Communications Services Inc. has agreed to do market studies to determine whether the project would be viable. The company wants to manage construction of the network and run the system.

Gamble said consortium members would have little financial risk, if any. Construction would be financed through non-recourse revenue bonds. Buyers would not seek repayment from the cities if the venture failed, he said.

Cities would get about 10 times the amount they currently receive in cable franchise fees, Gamble said.

Ameritech spokesman Ken Brady said it is risky for any entity to invest in fiber optics, but his company has communications expertise.

"I'd be very cautious about government getting into a very competitive, fast-changing technology," Brady said.

Ameritech has been building fiber optic "rings" in downtown Cleveland to make the technology available to businesses, and eventually will string lines into residential neighborhoods.

Cablevision has started a $300 million fiber optic upgrade in the suburbs of Cleveland Heights and Brook Park. Fiber optic line is being strung down streets, and homes would be connected by coaxial cable.

The upgrade will allow the company to double the number of channels it offers and provide enough capacity to offer telephone and Internet services.

Cablevision spokeswoman Dotie Fox said the consortium will have a hard time competing.

"A city utility is going to have an uphill battle," Fox said.

Eric Buck, an analyst with the New York securities firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, questioned whether governments would abuse their power to force companies to use their network.

But Joseph Turow, a professor of communications at the University of Pennsylvania, said some governments successfully run their own utility companies.

"It's all going to come down at the end of the day to who can meet the customers' needs economically, and who has the best financial mechanism in place to weather any kind of industry shakeout," Turow said.

General Motors Corp., and United Auto Workers union negotiators operate under a media blackout as they continue to work out differences. Negotiators met for about 13 hours Saturday, breaking at 11:30 p.m. and resumed talks Sunday.

GM continues strike negotiations with UAW

The Associated Press

DAYTON -- Operating under a media blackout, General Motors Corp. and United Auto Workers union negotiators met Saturday, the 12th day of a strike that has crippled GM production.

Negotiators met for about 13 hours Saturday, breaking at 11:30 p.m. They planned to resume talks Sunday. Neither side would comment on the progress of the talks, and the union said there was a media blackout.

Asked whether a blackout was in effect, GM spokesman Jim Hagedorn said: "We're just at this point trying to get the issues back on the table and getting the folks concentrating on getting the problem solved."

Negotiators got together for about 10 hours Friday to discuss the walkout by 2,700 workers over the issue of outsourcing, the production of parts by outside plants or companies.

In Washington, a U.S. Labor Department spokesman who asked not to be identified said Saturday that the government is not involved in the talks.

"For 60 years, General Motors and the United Auto Workers have worked out their labor disputes without any intervention from the federal government and we're confident that will occur this time as well," he said.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich, in a statement, urged that states accept claims for unemployment benefits by union members laid off because of the strike. GM has protested these applications, saying they would force the automaker to subsidize a strike against itself.

The walkout began March 5 at two Delphi Chassis plants. Since much of GM's overall production depends on parts made at the two plants, the world's largest automaker had to shut down 23 of its 29 North American assembly plants and 17 of its parts plants. Production at dozens of other parts plants was partially affected.

About 126,000 GM workers in the United States, Canada and Mexico have been idled by the strike, and 8,200 workers at the company's Saturn plant in Tennessee stopped production and turned to training sessions and maintenance.

The union fears outsourcing could eliminate GM jobs. The automaker says outsourcing, since it can be cheaper, is necessary to remain competitive.

UC sued for sex discrimination

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI -- Two documents filed in federal court allege that the University of Cincinnati pays female professors less than similarly qualified men.

The university denied the allegation.

Attorneys Robert Newman and Lisa Meeks submitted the documents Friday to U.S. District Judge Herman J. Weber. They represent Nancy Evers and other female faculty members suing the university.

The sex discrimination complaint was filed last year. Weber is considering whether to treat it as a class action or to require each faculty member to sue separately.

One document, from the Department of Labor, said the school failed to rebut the allegation of sex discrimination brought by the government's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs.

The department's May 26 letter to university President Joseph Steger was a notice of violation urging the school to comply "to avoid enforcement proceedings."

In the second document, a Kent State University analyst said the University of Cincinnati's data prove sex discrimination in promotion as well as pay.

Robert J. Johnson, associate professor of sociology at Kent State, looked at full-time, tenured or tenure-track female faculty in the past year.

Canadian spring breaker killed in robbery attempt

Ron Word
The Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. -- Blood-soaked roses marked the spot Saturday where a Canadian student on spring break was fatally shot at a public telephone while talking to his mother.

"We had parted with him. We never thought it was possible for something like this to happen," said Roberta Stavreva, staring at the roses that had absorbed the blood from the sand surrounding the pay phone.

Mark A. Fyke, 19, became the second foreign tourist to die in Florida in less than a month when he was shot in the back of the head Friday night.

"I just heard some voices in the background," Fyke's mother, Christine Fyke, told The Canadian Press in an interview Saturday. "I thought someone wanted to use the phone. He said, 'I've got to get going Mom. I'll see you later.'"

"And that was it." She said she didn't hear a shot.

Police said they were looking for a teen-ager who broke away from a small group of youths on the beach and tried to rob Fyke. The shooter was believed to be 14 to 16 years old and from the area, said Joe Wooden, deputy chief of the Volusia County Beach Patrol.

The two deaths recalled the spate of killings of foreigners in the early 1990s that left Florida's multibillion-dollar tourism industry struggling to protect its image.

"I'm certain it will make people stop and evaluate what's going on, but I'm sure they will realize this is not a standard," Wooden said, adding, "Daytona Beach is no Miami."

A Dutch woman was killed in an attempted robbery Feb. 23 while her husband asked for directions at a Miami gas station.

Daytona Beach, on the Atlantic coast northeast of Orlando, has been generally immune from violent crime and draws an estimated 300,000 young people this time of year, many from Canada.

Fyke, a student from Belleville, Ontario, was speaking on a phone at the entrance to a popular stretch of beach just before midnight. A friend, Che Guerrero, also of Canada, was with him when he was shot.

"I heard a shot and then his friend was pounding on the door screaming, 'Help me! Help me! Help me!'" said Ms. Stavreva, 19, a student from Hamilton, Ontario, who was wrapping up her final day of spring break Saturday.

"We ran outside and there was blood everywhere. There was nothing I could do for him."

The small black revolver used in the killing was on the sand beside Fyke's body, she said.

"I won't be back," said Michelle Ward, also 19, from Hamilton. "I used that phone all the time, sometimes at 2 in the morning." Motel phone surcharges made the pay phones popular with students, she said.

Witnesses told police the teen-ager walked up to Fyke, asked for his wallet and shot him once in the back of the head, Wooden said.

The shooter, described as a heavyset white male, then joined a group of teen-agers on the beach, who all ran away, Wooden said.

A $5,000 reward was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

Fyke's classmates, about 40 students from Nicholson Catholic high school, boarded their bus for home Saturday morning.

"That was a sad bunch of kids," said Dennis Gummo, front desk manager at the Thunderbird Motel, where they stayed.

Other students were checking in.

"It kind of puts a damper on spring break to have someone blown away on your first day," said Jason King, 19.

Woman shoots pregnant friend, steals child from womb

The Associated Press

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. -- A woman who was unable to have children took her pregnant best friend out for pizza, shot her to death and stole her daughter from her womb, police said.

Felicia Scott, 29, was arrested Friday and charged with capital murder. She was held without bail.

The infant, now about 6 weeks old, was doing well and was in state custody, said Tom Lowe, chief of the sheriff's department homicide division.

"The (mother's) body had been cut in the abdominal area, I am told, sufficiently to have removed an infant," said District Attorney Charles Freeman.

Lowe wouldn't say how or when the baby was born.

"You can see where this is going, if you let your imagination go," he said.

Ms. Scott is accused of killing 17-year-old Caretha Curry, who was nearly 9 months pregnant, after taking her out for pizza Jan. 31.

A week later, Ms. Scott allegedly turned up at her father's home in Norcross, Ga., with the teen-ager's newborn daughter.

She was arrested Feb. 7 and charged with custody interference, a felony, for failing to return Ms. Curry to her home in Tuscaloosa.

Murder charges were filed after Ms. Curry's body was found Thursday at the foot of a 50-foot ravine near Birmingham, roughly 60 miles northwest of here. The body was stuffed in a plastic garbage can sealed with duct tape.

Ms. Curry, who had been shot repeatedly in the head, died within 12 hours after she left with Ms. Scott that night, Lowe said.

Ms. Scott had always been a suspect, he said, but the investigation had been at a standstill until the body was found.

During the investigation, Ms. Scott's neighbors and friends in Tuscaloosa told police that she had not appeared to be pregnant in recent months.

Lowe also said Ms. Scott's medical records revealed she had undergone a hysterectomy and was unable to have children.

Congress sends president bill limiting lawsuits

Jim Abrams
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Defying a promised presidential veto, Congress will send to President Clinton a bill aimed at limiting lawsuits, Senate Majority Whip Trent Lott said Sunday.

"We are going to give him a chance to sign product liability," the Mississippi Republican said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "I cannot believe that he won't go with some legal reform."

Clinton, in a letter to congressional leaders Saturday, said the compromise bill worked out by House and Senate negotiators last week was unacceptable because it "unfairly tilts the legal playing field to the disadvantage of consumers."

Clinton said he opposed putting artificial caps on punitive damages that may be awarded in product liability action. The bill, he added, "displaces state law only when that law is more beneficial to consumers. It allows state laws to remain in effect when that law is more favorable to manufacturers and sellers."

The House and the Senate are expected to vote as early as this week on the compromise plan, a version that is far less ambitious than past attempts at litigation reform.

In their "Contract With America," House Republicans sought to limit punitive damages awards in all civil lawsuits, including medical malpractice. The bill coming out of Congress deals specifically with faulty-product lawsuits.

"We are going to send that to the president of the United States and he wants to veto it," Lott said. "Everybody in America knows we need legal reform, both in the criminal area and in the civil area, and yet when we send good legislation in that area to the president, he vetoes it."

The "Common Sense Consumer Liability Act of 1996" is the product of a 13-year struggle pitting business interests against consumer groups and trial lawyers.

Business groups contend that such legislation is crucial to stop frivolous lawsuits and extravagant damage awards that have crippled some industries and stunted economic initiative.

Consumer groups argue that consumers must retain the legal right to fair compensation for damages incurred from defective products.

Supporters of the bill said Clinton was bowing to the demands of trial lawyers, a major contributor to Democratic candidates.

"He's going to veto a very narrow product liability bill because the trial lawyers poured millions of dollars in his campaign," said his likely Republican rival next November, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

But Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said on NBC that the effort to "take away victims' rights" was part of the Republican agenda, including cutting social programs and removing health and safety regulations, that is undermining the economic security of Americans.

The House passed its stronger version of litigation reform last March by a 255-161 margin. The scaled-back Senate version.

Government faces shutdown

Harry Rosenthal
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Until next Friday, at least, the government will continue to operate with a full work force. Congress and President Clinton applied another financial Band-Aid.

With an election-year slap at the Republican-run Congress, Clinton signed a short-term spending bill Friday averting a third partial government shutdown in five months. The measure keeps federal employees on the job and programs running at least through March 22.

It is the 10th time since the current fiscal year began Oct. 1 that the government will operate under a temporary spending measure. The bill provides for the extension of appropriations for activities in four of five spending bills that have not been passed by Congress.

In signing the legislation postponing the deadline for agreement on the broader budget issues, Clinton said it was "regrettable that I must sign yet another" such temporary spending measure.

"However, Congress still has not passed five of this year's 13 appropriations bills in acceptable form, so this measure is necessary to prevent a third government shutdown," Clinton said.

Despite their wide differences over spending priorities, neither Democrats nor Republicans in an election year wanted to incur the wrath of the voters resulting from another shutdown.

"I urge Congress to meet its responsibilities by sending me legislation for the remaining fiscal 1996 appropriations bills in an acceptable form," Clinton said. "I have made it clear to the Congress what changes need to be made to make them acceptable."

He said the changes would protect vital programs in education, the environment, law enforcement and technology. Despite improvements by the Senate, the president said, the overall spending bill still fails to protect those programs and contain harmful and unacceptable legislative provisions.

Dole campaign supported by Midwestern governors

John King
The Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. -- For Bob Dole, it has become a familiar, if welcome, routine: another Midwestern campaign stop, another glowing introduction by a popular Republican governor. Some might say it's an audition of sorts.

"We have a chance to rectify our mistake," Gov. Tommy Thompson said as he warmed up for Dole over the weekend, lamenting President Clinton's 1992 Wisconsin victory. "We can replace the say-anything, do-nothing president with a true leader who knows how to deliver on his promises."

Dole is grateful for the support, and says so at every stop, whether his host is Thompson, Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar, Ohio Gov. George Voinovich or Michigan Gov. John Engler. But as he begins to look past Tuesday's Midwest primaries toward a fall showdown with Clinton, Dole will need more than the governors' support. To win in November, he must find a formula that emulates their appeal beyond traditional GOP constituencies.

Clinton won Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin in 1992 -- pocketing 72 electoral votes, more than one quarter of what it takes to win the White House.

Yet just two years later, Thompson, Edgar, Engler and Voinovich were re-elected in landslides, each drawing significant support from union members and other traditional Democratic constituencies, as well as strong backing from voters whose support for Ross Perot in 1992 helped Clinton to his Midwest success.

In Ohio, Voinovich matched those numbers while also winning 40 percent of the black vote and 58 percent support among voters from union households. Showing appeal across the political spectrum, Edgar won 80 percent support from those who called themselves conservatives, 60 percent from self-described moderates and 40 percent support from liberals. Sixty-one percent of working women voted for Edgar over his female Democratic opponent. "In 1992 Clinton ran as the candidate of change and was rewarded," Engler said in an interview. "But in 1994, when he had failed to deliver, voters turned on him with a vengeance and elected a Republican Congress. We governors showed what the potential payoff is if you keep your word and get the job done."

Early in this election cycle, however, Clinton is riding high again and voter anger and frustration that was aimed his way in 1994 appears to be directed at the Republican Congress. One recent Michigan survey, for example, showed that even among likely Republican primary voters Clinton was viewed more favorably than House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

Looking ahead, there is no shortage of advice from the GOP governors.

"Bill Clinton is a better politician and we will give him that," Edgar said. "But this should be an election about who you trust to deliver on their promises and I never hear the word trust when people are talking about Bill Clinton."

BG down and out at the Joe

Lake Superior stymies Falcons with 7-0 victory

Lake Superior 7, Bowling Green 0

DETROIT -- At least the last two times Bowling Green lost at Joe Louis Arena the games went into overtime.

This Friday the Falcons kowtowed to Lake Superior early in the third period and left JLA with a 7-0 loss in the semifinals of the Central Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

Michigan won the CCHA playoff championship beating Lake Superior 4-3 Saturday. The Wolverines earned an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

In possibly its biggest game of the season with NCAA Tournament implications, the Falcons started out flat and never responded to the Laker onslaught. The entire team -- from goaltender down to fourth line center -- put forth a lackluster effort. The loss was the sixth consecutive at JLA for the Falcons.

Powers

"They played with a great effort and determination tonight. They took the game right away from us," said BG head coach Buddy Powers.

The Lakers blew open a three goal lead after two periods with two more goals early in the third period. Matt Alvey scored at 3:57 on a shot over the shoulder of freshman BG goalie Mike Savard. Just 23 seconds later, the Lakers put the game away with another soft goal.

Falcon defenseman Quinn Fair lost control of the puck as it got caught on the netting on the Falcon net. Jason Sessa gained control of the puck and slammed it into the net. Savard was slow to cover the right post and the puck went through his legs.

"Savy did a good job," Powers said. "In the third period things got away from him a little bit. As a team we didn't respond to the challenge."

LSSU head coach Jeff Jackson said experience was the difference in goaltending between the two teams.

Falcon icers left in cold by Lakers, NCAA selections

Christian Pelusi
The BG News

DETROIT -- The 7-0 drubbing that Lake Superior dealt to Bowling Green Friday at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit could be pointed to as the reason the Falcons were not included in the field of 12 for the NCAA Championship tournament.

But witnessing the other events outside the CCHA, even a convincing win against Lake Superior would not have pushed BG into the national tournament.

Bowling Green fell victim to unbelievable upset after unbelievable upset to leave them on the outside of the top dozen teams.

The ECAC crowned Cornell as their playoff champion after they upset Clarkson in the semifinals while Providence took the Hockey East title by defeating the No. 1 seed Boston University and No. 3 seed Maine on their way to becoming that league's first No. 4 seed ever to win the playoff championship.

Automatic bids were given out to Boston, Colorado College, Lake Superior and Vermont for winning their respective regular season titles.

For clinching their respective playoff titles, automatic invites were handed out to Michigan, Minnesota, Cornell and Providence.

That left four at-large bids to be given to four teams: Clarkson, Massachusetts-Lowell, Michigan State and Western Michigan, who BG eliminated in two games during the CCHA playoffs.

Rick Comley, head coach of Northern Michigan and chairman of the NCAA selection committee, said in his conference call following the selections Sunday night that if only one of the two upsets -- Cornell or Providence -- did not occur that Bowling Green would have been in.

Number 13 couldn't have been any unluckier for the Falcons.

But luck had no part in the Lakers' superiority over the Falcons.

The Lakers controlled every aspect of the game from beginning to end with little or no return fire from the Falcons.

When a team like Lake Superior jumps out to a 3-0 lead midway through the second period, it is difficult to come back, especially with their goaltender, John Grahame, playing at the top of his game.

"I thought it was very important for us to get a good start on Bowling Green," said Laker

Bearcats claw past Temple, 78-65

Fred Goodall
The Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. -- Maybe Bob Huggins should write a book on how to solve John Chaney's pesky matchup zone.

Cincinnati did it for the fifth time in four seasons Sunday and earned a trip to the Sweet 16 with a 78-65 victory over Temple in the NCAA Southeast Regional.

Damon Flint made four 3-pointers and scored 22 points and Darnell Burton hit five 3s, including three during a 19-2 run the second-seeded Bearcats used to open a 15-point second-half lead.

Temple (20-13) closed to 64-61 with 3:32 to go, then missed 12 of its final 13 shots to fall from the tournament with a loss to Cincinnati (27-4) for the second straight year.

"We played a team that didn't look too explosive against the zone two days ago (against UNC Greensboro). But then they came out shooting today," Chaney said after Cincinnati made 10 of 24 3-point attempts.

"Flint is a guy we were not prepared to stop. We didn't think he could hurt us. We don't aim our defense at stopping guys from shooting 25 feet out. If we get close (in the closing minutes), Flint's not going to take those shots. I'll bet my life on it."

■ Weekend NCAA tournament roundup, page 9

Burton finished with 18 points and Danny Fortson, the Conference USA player of the year, scored 13 of his 18 after halftime to send the Bearcats into the regional semifinals at Lexington, Ky.

The Sweet 16 appearance will be Cincinnati's third in five years under Huggins, who took over a moribund program seven seasons ago and took the Bearcats to the Final Four in 1992.

"It was a great win for us," Huggins said. "We got a lot of contributions from a lot of people. We're just happy to keep playing."

Marc Jackson led Temple with 13 points, all in the second half. Levan Alston kept the Owls close with 12 first-half points, while most of Jackson's scoring came during the 17-4 run the Owls put together to get back into the game.

Cincinnati shot 48 percent overall against the nation's stingiest field-goal defense while holding Temple to just under 34 percent. Burton was 5-for-12 from 3-point range, while Flint went 4-for-11.

Tyson dispatches Bruno in three rounds

Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Iron Mike looked tough and sounded ominous.

Mike Tyson regained a piece of the heavyweight title Saturday night by battering British champion Frank Bruno into submission in the third round.

"I'm still not my best. I'm still continuing to improve," Tyson said afterward.

Certainly food for thought for any other heavyweight.

"He certainly wasn't off tonight," said Jay Bright, Tyson's trainer.

Tyson's timing, however, appeared to be, and he was wild on many punches in only his third fight in a comeback that began last Aug. 10 following a 3-year layoff.

His three fights in the comeback have lasted less than seven rounds.

While Tyson was often wild, there was no question about his hand speed or his power.

"Whoever is next, I'm prepared, but I've still got a lot of work to do," he said.

The 34-year-old Bruno, who had rocked Tyson and lasted into the fifth round against him on Feb. 28, 1989, never had a chance this night in the MGM Grand Garden.

"I'm a little brokenhearted," said Bruno, who for the first time was defending the World Boxing Council championship he won on points from Oliver McCall last Sept. 2. "I tried my best."

What the 247-pound Brit did mostly, however, was hold. He appeared tight from the opening bell and was penalized a point for holding in the second round.

"I was just trying to use my weight against him, to lean on him, but he was just too fast. He got away from me," he said.

Said Tyson: "He was holding on me because he didn't want to get knocked out."

But there were signs, even in the first round, that a knockout was what Bruno was headed for. The 220-pound Tyson rocked Bruno late in the first round and opened a cut over his left eye that required stitches.

In the second round, he rocked the defending champion with a left hook 35 seconds into the round and with another hook about 35 seconds later.

He also had Bruno in trouble with a left hook to the head and to the body just before the bell.

With a packed house in the 16,723-seat arena roaring, Tyson came out to finish it in the third. He blasted a left hook to the head that started Bruno backwards to the ropes and he followed with 11 punches. He landed eight of those punches and Bruno sank onto the second strand of ropes, the only thing that held him up.

Referee Mills Lane didn't even bother to count, reaching instead for Bruno's mouthpiece as Tyson threw his fists into the air and dropped to his knees in celebration.

The Tyson money wagon now appears headed for a challenge to World Boxing Association champion Bruce Seldon, probably in July. A lawsuit by Lenox Lewis against Tyson and Bruno and the WBC possibly could delay such a match.

Whoever Tyson fights, he will make another wagonload of money. He earned $30 million Saturday night, boosting his three-comeback-fight bankroll to $60 million.

Indians sink Marlins, 4-3

Javier Maymi
The Associated Press

PONCE, Puerto Rico — The Cleveland Indians rallied for four runs in the third inning and five Cleveland pitchers scattered seven hits to post a 4-3 victory over the Florida Marlins Sunday in exhibition baseball action.

It was the Indians' second one-run victory in the last two days.

The Indians took the early lead in the third off Marlins starter Ryan Bowen (1-2) when Brian Giles was hit by a pitch and scored on a double by Kenny Lofton, his fourth of the spring.

Omar Vizquel drove Lofton home with a single and Carlos Baerga followed with another base hit to move Vizquel to third.

Julio Franco, who came into the game batting .182 in the spring, doubled Vizquel and Baerga home for his second and third RBIs of the spring and put the Indians up 4-0.

The Marlins rallied for two runs in the fourth when Alex Arias singled and moved to second on a Gary Sheffield fielder's choice. After Jeff Conine drew a walk from starter Chad Ogea (2-0), Greg Colbrunn doubled to move the Marlins to within two.

Ogea, battling for the fifth starter spot with Mark Clark,

Joe Roa and Albie Lopez, went four innings giving up three hits and two earned runs to earn his second win of the spring.

The Marlins moved to within one in the eighth after Ron Brown led off with a double off Indians reliever Allan Embree and scored on Alex Gonzalez's pinch-hit single.

The Marlins threatened in the bottom of the ninth off Tribe pitcher Julian Tavares when Chris Scheff singled to lead off, but was thrown out trying to steal by Jesse Levis, Levis' second put-out of the game.

Tavares finished the game for his second spring training save.

LAKE

"It's a tough scenario when you throw a freshman in goal in a situation like this. You never know what to expect," Jackson said. "We've seen both the positive and negative with us. We've got a guy that's got a year's experience in here tonight."

At the offensive end, the Bowling Green forwards didn't generate many good scoring chances. The Falcons put 25 shots on sophomore Laker goalie John Grahame with 10 in the final period, mostly after the game was out of reach.

"We just didn't compete tonight," said Falcon center Curtis Fry. "In the start we didn't get anything going. I think the exact same thing we did to Western [Michigan] last weekend in both games happened to us tonight."

The Lakers were able to shut down the third highest scoring offense in the league. Friday's game was the second time this season BG has been shutout.

"I don't think it was a matter of controlling their forwards as much as playing good team defense," Jackson said. "Bowling Green has quite a bit of offensive depth. It's a team effort, team defense, and it also takes a little bit of goaltending."

The Lakers led 1-0 after the first period despite being outshot 10-8 by BG. But in the second period, LSSU outshot the Falcons 17-5 and scored twice to pull ahead.

Laker center Gerald Tallaire scored two power play goals within a span of three minutes to increase the Lakers lead to three. Lake Superior was 3-9 on the power play.

Bowling Green wasn't as productive with their power play opportunities. BG went 0-7 on the power play and had few good scoring chances on any of their power play attempts. BG got a 5-3 power play opportunity shortly after the Lakers opened the scoring in the first period. On a goal by Joe Blaznek, BG got a 5-3 opportunity.

"We generated some opportunities but didn't finish," Powers said. "I think the team that kills that off grows off of that and gets momentum, and the team that doesn't gets a little frustrated. They certainly capitalized on their 4-3."

END

head coach Jeff Jackson.

"It was just a matter of us playing quite a little bit better than the last time we saw them."

That last time had the Falcons and Lakers splitting a weekend series back on Feb. 2-3 at the Ice Arena with the Lakers squeezing out an overtime win to avoid a BG sweep.

But those contests looked like a distant memory, as did the Falcons' impressive sweep of Western Michigan less than two weeks ago, after watching Bowling Green's lackluster performance.

"Last weekend, we played against another physical team in Western Michigan, but that was last weekend," said Falcon center Curtis Fry. "We just didn't compete tonight right from the start; we couldn't get anything going."

"I think the exact same thing that we did to Western last weekend in both games happened to us in a big way."

Those things that BG failed to do were numerous but most obvious was their inability to produce quality scoring opportunities and to force the game to be played in the Lakers' end of the ice. Goaltender Mike Savard was erratic in goal, allowing three soft goals while making spectacular saves on the more difficult Laker chances.

In defense of Savard, so to speak, the Falcon team defense appeared to have been left in Kalamazoo. The Lakers moved easily through the neutral zone and created excellent scoring chances consistently.

That induced Bowling Green to take many holding, tripping and hooking penalties, meaning the BG defense was getting beaten and were required to take the two minutes in the penalty box.

"They won all of the one-on-one battles and that's really, in a game like this, that's where you're going to find out how successful you're going to be," said Falcon head coach Buddy Powers.

"As a team we didn't respond to the challenge," Powers said. "Lake Superior kind of threw down the gloves and said, 'Hey, we're here to play boys, and we didn't meet it.'"

Purdue first top seed to fall

Big Ten teams hit hard in NCAA's first two rounds

The Associated Press

Top-seeded Purdue, which narrowly avoided defeat in the first round of the NCAA tournament, couldn't pull off another escape in the second round.

The Boilermakers became the first top seed to lose in this year's tournament, falling to eighth-seeded Georgia 76-69 Saturday in the West Regional. "We didn't deserve it today and we got eliminated," Purdue coach Gene Keady said.

Terrell Bell scored 15 points and blocked seven shots for Georgia, which held Purdue (26-6) without a field goal for nearly nine minutes in the first half.

"Terrell blocked lots of shots and even the ones he didn't block, he altered," Georgia forward Carlos Strong said.

Purdue, which edged Western Carolina by two points in the opening round, shot only 37 percent for the game, including 28 percent in the second half. The Big Ten champions never got closer than five points after the break.

Carlos Strong scored 17 points for Georgia (21-9), which advanced past the second round for the first time since it reached the 1983 Final Four.

The other top seeds won their second-round games Saturday. Massachusetts beat Stanford 79-74 in the East, Kentucky defeated Virginia Tech 84-60 in the Midwest and Connecticut downed Eastern Michigan 95-81 in the Southeast.

UMass (33-1) won its 10th game of the season by six points or less.

"You have to understand we're not the kind of team that beats people by 50 points," coach John Calipari said. "We haven't been all year. We're a grind-it-out basketball team."

All-American Marcus Camby was plagued by foul trouble, but still got 20 points, eight rebounds and seven blocks for UMass, which barely held on after building a 13-point lead with seven minutes left.

"These are all do-or-die games, and you have to play that way."

Marcus Camby

Stanford pulled within one point on Dion Cross' 3-pointer with 52 seconds left, but Donta Bright then sank a foul-line jumper for UMass. Stanford freshman Peter Sauer missed a 3-point attempt with 15 seconds remaining, and Camby made a pair of free throws for the final margin.

"These are all do-or-die games, and you have to play that way," Camby said. "That's the way we always play."

Brevin Knight had 27 points and nine assists for Stanford (20-9).

In other second-round games Saturday, Utah beat Iowa State 73-67 in the Midwest, Mississippi State stopped Princeton 63-41 in the Southeast, Syracuse defeated Drexel 69-58 in the West and Arkansas defeated Marquette 65-56 in the East.

Saturday's results left the Southeast Conference 8-0 after two rounds, with four teams in the round of 16. The Big East is 7-0 after Syracuse's victory, with three teams from that conference playing Sunday for spots in the Sweet 16.

In regional semifinals next Thursday, it will be UMass and Arkansas in the East at Atlanta and Kentucky vs. Utah in the Midwest at Minneapolis. On Friday, UConn will play Mississippi State in the Southeast at Lexington, Ky., and Georgia will face Syracuse in the West at Denver.

Four freshmen helped Arkansas reach the final 16 for the fourth straight year. Pat Bradley scored 12 points for the Razorbacks (20-12), while fellow freshman Derek Hood had 11 points and 13 rebounds. Marlin Towns scored 11 points, and Kareem Reid had nine assists and three steals. Marquette (23-8) sank a season-low 27 percent from the field.

SOUTHEAST
At Indianapolis
Connecticut 95, E. Michigan 81

Doron Sheffer matched his career high with 27 points and Ray Allen had 25 points and 10 rebounds as UConn overcame a 13-point deficit. Eastern Michigan made 13 of its first 18 shots and built a 32-19 lead in the first half before UConn (32-2) rallied. The Huskies pulled within one point by halftime, and took the lead for good early in the second half. Brian Tolbert scored 36 points for Eastern Michigan (25-6).

Mississippi St. 63, Princeton 41
Erick Dampier scored 20 points as Mississippi State sent Princeton coach Pete Carril into retirement after 30 years as a college coach.

The 13th-seeded Tigers, who upset defending national champion UCLA in the first round, couldn't overcome Mississippi State's 16-7 start, and they got no closer than eight points in the second half after trailing 31-20 at halftime.

MIDWEST

Rodman facing suspension after head-butting

The Associated Press

NEW YORK -- Dennis Rodman faced a suspension by the NBA after head-butting a referee, stripping to his waist, knocking over a water cooler and shouting obscenities after he was ejected in Chicago's victory at New Jersey.

"We're still investigating. I would imagine something will be announced Monday," NBA spokesman Brian McIntyre said Sunday.

The Bulls play Monday night at Philadelphia, but it's likely Rodman will miss that game and perhaps more. Rodman's tirade Saturday night was witnessed by NBA vice president of operations Rod Thorn, the official who hands out suspensions.

"Obviously, he didn't leave the court in a timely manner," Thorn said Saturday night. "If anybody thinks they're going to disrupt our game, they've got another thing coming."

Rodman, who contends the referees around the league treat him unfairly, has behaved better this season than in years past. He finally lost his cool against the Nets.

After picking up a technical 5:44 into the game for pounding the ball on the court, Rodman was ejected with 1:31 left in the first period after being called for a personal foul.

As Rodman argued the call with Mihalik, he put his hands inside his shorts. Referee Ted Bernhardt noticed the gesture and called Rodman for his second technical.

Rodman went after Bernhardt and lightly head-butted him above the left eye. Rodman then flung his shirt off.

Brandon back, Cavaliers happy

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Terrell Brandon is back and the Cleveland Cavaliers are happy about it.

Brandon, in his second game back after missing seven with a bruised tailbone, scored 26 points in a 115-84 victory over the Sacramento Kings on Sunday.

"I feel pretty good," said Brandon after making 10 of 16 shots from the field and all four of his free throws. "I don't feel it if I am still hurt. Maybe I'm a little naive about it, but I'm ready to give 100 percent and help this team get into the playoffs."

Cleveland, 36-28, pulled within 1 game of the New York Knicks in the battle for the fourth playoff position in the Eastern Conference. Sacramento, 28-35, fell into a tie with the Golden State Warriors for the eighth playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Sacramento has gone 6-22 after a 22-13 start, while Cleveland is 36-21 after losing its first seven games of the season. The Cavs went 2-5 when Brandon was out with the injury.

"We had won three in a row until losing the last two on the road, where we haven't been in either of the last two games," Kings guard Bobby Hurley said. "We didn't shoot the ball well at all. That's the reason we lost."

Toledo women upset favored Mississippi in NCAA first round

The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va. -- Mimi Olson and Angela Drake combined for 17 points during a 25-10 spurt early in the second half Saturday night and Toledo upset No. 24 Mississippi 65-53 in the first round of the women's NCAA tournament.

Drake, limited to two points in the first half, scored nine points in the run that gave the Rockets a 51-37 lead with 8:47 to play. Olson hit two 3-pointers and a long 2-pointer in 2 minutes as Toledo took command.

The Rockets (25-5) advanced to a second round game against either No. 6 Old Dominion or Holy Cross on Monday night at Old Dominion Field House.

Olson finished with 20 points and Drake added 18.

Mississippi (18-11), one of four schools to appear in as many as 14 of the 15 NCAA women's tournaments, made only 20 of 66 shots overall, or 30.3 percent. It was 10-for-36 after halftime, 27.8 percent.

Yolanda Moore led Mississippi with 17 points.

Ole Miss led 27-26 after a sloppy, fast-paced first half that featured 23 turnovers, 12 by the Lady Rebels, and poor shooting.
